INTRODUCTION.

IN submitting to the world BAXTER'S PICTORIAL KEY TO THE GREAT EXHIBITION AND VISITORS' GUIDE TO LONDON, the Proprietor deems it a favourable opportunity to refer to the extraordinary success which has attended his exertions to improve the hitherto imperfect style and effect of Colour Printing.

In the Fine Arts' Court of the Crystal Palace are exhibited upwards of sixty specimens of BAXTER'S PATENT OIL COLOUR PRINTINGS, consisting of Historical and Architectural subjects, Landscapes, Portraits, and Flowers; and such has been the demand for some of these gems, that it has been requisite to reproduce them, the sale of some having exceeded four hundred thousand. It may very naturally be asked, What has produced this extraordinary patronage?

From the many encomiums bestowed by the public press on the Patentee's productions, he flatters himself he is justified in asserting that, whether as works of mechanism or of art, the minuteness of detail and the fidelity of their execution form no insignificant attributes of that success. Of their delicacy, brilliancy, transparency, and harmony of colour no doubt is entertained: these grand features, which produce extraordinary effect, render every print a picture, in the fullest sense.

They have another prominent feature, and one of which the Patentee is pre-eminently proud,—namely, that while their artistic beauty may procure for them a place in the Royal Palaces throughout Europe, the price at which they are retailed introduces them to the humblest cottage.

In reference to price, the eminent D. ROBERTS, Esq., R.A., in his evidence before the Committee of the Privy Council, on the occasion of the extension of the patent, in reply to a question as to his idea of the value of one of the shilling prints, replied that “he considered it worth half a guinea, “and that there was nothing known that equalled the Patentee's invention in Colour Printing.” And the Right Honourable the Lord BROUGHAM, as Chairman of the Judicial Committee, in delivering judgment upon the same occasion, laid considerable stress on the public utility of the invention. His words were: “Their Lordships are also of opinion that the invention is of public utility, because “whatever makes good prints almost pictures, prints almost of the merits of paintings or drawings, “easy of access to the common people, is of great utility to the public in every respect.”

The Patentee has ever been convinced that cheap, artistic, pictorial illustrations, are calculated to prove a great benefit to the million, as a highly important addition to the means of youthful instruction; and he flatters himself that on this point his exertions in Oil Colour Printing have been pre-eminently successful, as by no other means, can such extreme detail, such truthful colouring, or such unlimited numbers be produced.

In almost every habitable part of the globe, BAXTER'S OIL COLOUR PRINTS have had a most favourable reception. There is scarcely a town or village in Great Britain, or in the whole Continent of Europe, in which they have not found admirers; and this in the face of High Art in the principal cities of France, Germany, etc., is a circumstance engendering in the Inventor's mind a source of personal gratification. The elaborately decorative inhabitants of the East have also borne unqualified testimony to their beauty; and China has foregone its usual exclusiveness, and admitted them into the "Celestial Empire."

The Patentee could say more, but fearful of the charge of egotism, he must content himself, and conclude with expressing his sincere thanks to his patrons, assuring them that his grandest aim will ever be to secure for Oil Colour Printing every maximum quality that it is possible for Science and Art to accomplish.

11 & 12, NORTHAMPTON SQUARE, July, 1851.

LICENCES granted to work Baxter's Patent Process of OIL COLOUR PRINTING in Great Britain, 200 Guineas; France, Belgium, Germany, etc. etc., 1,260 Francs. Instructions to Licensees, 11 and 12, Northampton Square.

Das Privilegium für Deutschland, Frankreich, etc., von BAXTER'S Patent-Oelfarbendruck ist zu erhalten nebst gründlichen Instructionen für die Summe von 1,260 Francs, beim Erfinder, Nos. 11 und 12, Northampton Square, London.

THE GREAT EXHIBITION KEY.

THIS Key, in English, French, and German, is intended for an easy reference to the Exhibition, and a ready Guide to the principal Buildings, Places of Amusement, Day-Excursions into the Country, and objects of interest. The Illustrations are printed in Oil Colours by GEORGE BAXTER, the Inventor and Patentee, Nos. 11 and 12, Northampton-square.

The Great Exhibition of 1851 was built under the patronage of HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS PRINCE ALBERT, and opened on the 1st of May by HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY QUEEN VICTORIA. The building was designed by Mr. PAXTON, and erected by Messrs. FOX and HENDERSON: the beautiful effects in the ornamental department were executed under the superintendence of Mr. OWEN JONES.

TABELLE ZUR GROSSEN INDUSTRIE-AUSSTELLUNG.

Diese Tabelle (in Deutscher, Englischer, und Französischer Sprache), soll als leichtfasslicher Wegweiser in der Ausstellung und als bequemer Führer zu den hauptsächlichlichen Gebäuden, Vergnügungsplätzen, Tag-Excursionen in die Umgegend u. s. w. dienen. Die Illustrationen sind in Oelfarbendruck von Georg Baxter, dem Erfinder und Patent Inhaber, No. 11 und 12, Northampton-square, verfertigt.

Die grosse Ausstellung von 1851, wurde unter dem Patronat Seiner Königl: Hoheit, des Prinzen Albert gebaut, und am 1sten Mai durch Ihre Majestät, die Königin Victoria eröffnet. Das Gebäude wurde von Mr. Paxton entworfen und von den Herren Fox und Henderson errichtet; und unter der Leitung von Mr. Owen Jones entstand die an Effecten reiche Ornamentik im Innern des Glaspallastes.
